Rainbow Chord Piano

The Kid's Guide to Playing Piano or Keyboard
EMILY ARROW

Children learn best when they can learn through multi-sensory means. By using hearing, seeing and kinesthetic methods, Emily Arrow has created this easy and fun book, Rainbow Chord Piano, for children to use as an introduction to learn how to play the piano. The book is a simple and much needed piano method for beginning musicians ages 6 and older. Her process, which follows the Orff Schulwerk method, is very approachable as she walks young musicians through 12 lessons learning musical notes and chords on a keyboard through a color dot method. She uses colorful stickers to represent the notes, flashcards to learn the rainbow chords and video/audio links for students to access for further help. The book also introduces young minds to important musical vocabulary, fun facts and the history of the piano and provides a practice chart. It even provides on-line audio access so young minds can hear what the piece should sound like. If your child needs an easy and fun guide to learning the piano, this is the book for you.

Kids' Ukulele Song Book

Learn 30 Songs to Sing and Play

EMILY ARROW

The perfect next step for kids with a basic understanding of how to play the ukulele, Kids' Ukulele Song Book continues their musical practice with 30 new songs for kids to learn and play! Starting off with a quick review of the four basic ukulele chords, children will then learn brand new chords and single notes to build on their existing skills. From there, easy-to-follow guidance for 30 simple songs will have children strumming in no time! Kids can also create their own original songs using the songwriting template pages, use a practice chart for staying on track, and even online audio access so they can play along with author Emily Arrow, this book is the ultimate continuation to expand and grow their ukulele skill set!

GUINEA PIG

Cavia porcellus

ORIGIN
 So cute! That's usually what people say when they see a guinea pig. This species name does not indicate their origin, the Guinea mountains range in South America, where they were very popular - for their meat. Guinea pigs in the Andes have been raised for food for a very long time.

BEHAVIOR
 • The guinea pig is diurnal (awake during the day). It lives in small groups and does not like to live alone. It is a calm rodent and does not trust strangers.
 • This popular pet needs space and a special diet.
 • Because guinea pigs do not like being alone, you need to adopt two, and three would be even better. Choose a group of females as you will not end up having to raise guinea pig babies that you do not really see.
 • Guinea pigs are often afraid when they first go to their new homes. You need to help your pet stay calm and gentle. Offer them little bits of fruit or vegetables by hand to make them want to approach you. Do not make quick or rough movements.
 • Let them get out to stretch their legs every day by opening the door of their cage. Choose a cage with an opening on the side so they can leave and then return on their own.
 • Guinea pigs can jump, but they can't climb.
 • They vocalize a lot to communicate with each other and to express how they feel, for example, when they are content. You'll notice when you approach their cage with food, that they let you know they're looking forward to a treat!

MY OBSERVATIONS
 Today you can find an amazing variety of guinea pigs, including long-haired Angoras, Abyssinians with hair that grows in circular "rosettes", and "Sisters" that look like little hippopotamuses because they have no hair at all. All of the different types get along with each other.

GUINEA PIG

HOUSING
 • Get a cage at least 3 feet (about 1 m) long so that multiple guinea pigs will be comfortable and have enough space.
 • Place the cage away from drafts, either on the floor or on a piece of low furniture. Because they are active during the day and sleep at night, they will have you awake at night if you put the cage in your bedroom.
 • Use the lamp, fan, or coconut fiber litter. Keep the litter clean by changing it regularly.
 • In summer, your guinea pigs can spend some time in a safe enclosure outdoors, because they love eating grass and playing. Make sure that the enclosure has a shady area and fresh water at all times.

FEEDING
 • Guinea pigs are strictly herbivores (plant-eaters). Feed them high-quality pellets made for guinea pigs. Do not feed them a seed mixture.
 • Offer them vegetables you have washed and dried, wild grasses (they love dandelions!), and clover.
 • You can add some fruit to their diet as well. The more you vary their diet, the healthier they will be.
 • Because guinea pigs have trouble absorbing vitamin C, you need to add extra vitamin C to their diets to make sure they are getting enough. Give them oranges or lemons, for example, or liquid vitamin C, which you can buy at a pet supply store.
 • Keep good-quality hay in their cages at all times. Place it in a small bundle so that it stays clean. Guinea pigs eat only soft hay, but they use it to keep their teeth from growing too much. The hay works like a file to wear their teeth down.

EGYPTIAN PREDATOR BEETLE

Anthia sexmaculata

BEHAVIOR
 This beetle is amazing in many ways.
 • First, it is an extraordinary hunter that is quick to go after its prey by chasing it, which makes it very interesting to watch.
 • Next, it is very pretty, with its black and white body on long legs.
 • Finally—and I have saved the best for last—this animal has astonished researchers for a long time because of its unique defense mechanism. Its body has two storage chambers at the back that contain different chemicals. When these chemicals combine, they set off an explosion! The beetle expels a hot, irritating liquid that is guaranteed to stop a predator in its tracks. I don't recommend this pet for a child younger than ten, but it should be fine for a responsible older child.

ORIGIN
 This is one impressive creature. It may be small, but it is a powerful predator. Believe me, if you were a little insect, you would not want to cross paths with one of these!
 This insect, whose scientific name is Anthia sexmaculata, is a general beetle in the family Carabidae. This family includes more than 500 species! We will focus on this particular beetle, because it is one of the easiest to find from specialty sellers.

MY OBSERVATIONS
 This beetle is fairly easy to raise, but beware: it's best observed with the eyes, not with the hands!

EGYPTIAN PREDATOR BEETLE

HOUSING
 This insect is native to the very dry regions of Egypt. It's easy to create the hot and dry environment prevent your beetle from digging underneath the stones and accidentally being crushed.
 • The predator beetle cannot climb glass walls, so a small aquarium that is 8 inches (20 cm) high will do the job.
 • Place a lamp over the tank on one side so that the tank has a hot side and a cooler side. Do not let it be too hot in the area under the lamp (about 77° Fahrenheit / 25° Celsius); your beetle can seek refuge at the other end of the tank.
 • Add a layer of sand about an inch (2.5 cm) deep as well as some stones for decoration. Be sure to set the stones firmly in the bottom of the aquarium to prevent your beetle from digging underneath the stones and accidentally being crushed.
 • Add a mini water dish: a plastic bottle cap set into the sand works well.

FEEDING
 • This small but tough little predator will attack and eat pretty much anything that moves.
 • Grasshoppers, caterpillars, worms, crickets, and other insects are ideal meals.
 • You can usually buy mealworms or small crickets at a pet supply store. Your beetle will trade enjoy them.
 • Feed your beetle three or four times a week. If it ever doesn't go after its prey because it's too hungry, which might be the case, remove the food and try again a few days later.
